Maine's Nordic ski industry sees threat in growth of public trails

By SCOTT ANDREWS
Special to The Bethel Citizen

Thanks to the Valentine's Day snowstorm and the current school vacations, the three cross-country ski touring centers in the Bethel area are bustling with activity this week. But the long-term outlook for their business is troubling, say the operators.

The Nordic ski industry is changing, and the traditional business model that has been its mainstay for more than 30 years is threatened with extinction or eclipse, especially in Maine.

That's according to three mainstays of the local ski touring industry: David Carter of Carter's X-C, Mike Cooper of the Bethel Inn Nordic Ski Center and Steve Wight of the Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center.

These three Nordic centers, which draw thousands of people into the area each winter, are key components of Bethel's tourist-based economy.

Carter, Cooper and Wight contend that the recent proliferation of cross-country trails — which are subsidized by governments and well-heeled, tax-exempt nonprofit organizations — threatens their own for-profit businesses.

They note that in the past few years, Maine's minuscule Nordic industry has been jolted by two large, well-financed rivals who are siphoning off skiers in increasing numbers. Maine Winter Sports Center, which initially focused on biathlon competition in Aroost-

'The sound of the outward bound'

Gogi Grant's 1956 Billboard hit "The Wayward Wind" lamented the call of the outward bound, a call that — in a somewhat domesticated form — is still heard by model railroaders like Blaine Mills of Greenwood (shown here) and Dean Walker of Bethel. By chance, Walker's half-century-long involvement with model trains began at just about the time of Grant's hit, and Mills' latest model world is that of a New England village in October of 1956. But both Mills and Walker favor the 50s not for the song, but because that was a time when both steam and diesel locomotives were sharing the rails.

One possible remedy: growing the market

By SCOTT ANDREWS
Special to The Bethel Citizen

Although the Bethel area's three cross-country ski businesses feel threatened by increasing competition from government subsidized and tax-exempt Nordic centers, they praise the efforts to enlarge the total size of the market and they welcome a newfound spirit of cooperation with the much larger alpine industry.

David Carter, Mike Cooper and Steve Wight (Carter's X-C Centers, Bethel Inn Nordic Ski Center and Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center respectively) applaud Maine Winter Sports Center's outreach programs, which introduce thousands of schoolchildren and a smaller number of adults to skiing.

In the long run, everyone will benefit from boosting the total size of the market, they believe.

Carter emphasizes that his two touring centers (he also Soon it will be down to three. The American Skiing Company, which once owned nine ski resorts nationwide, announced Tuesday that it has agreed to sell Killington and Pico resorts in Vermont for $83.5 million.

The announcement came four days after ASC announced the sale of Mount Snow in southern Vermont and New Hampshire's Attitash ski areas.

The sale of Killington and Pico, which is expected to be complete in 45 days, will leave ASC with three resorts: Sugarloaf/USA and Sunday River in Maine, and The Canyons, ASC's flagship 3,700-acre resort in Park City, Utah.

The sale announced Tuesday, to SP Land Co., LLC, a Dallas-based real estate investor, and POWDR Corp., a Utah-based resort company, includes all of Killington and Pico's resort-owned real estate. SP Land will assume about $5 million in debt as part of the purchase.

"It's a very important transaction for American Skiing as well as a very good transaction for Killington and Pico," ASC President B.J. Fair said.

SP Land acquired real estate near Killington in 2004 when

Bethel Appeals Board wants old power back

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Harry Faulkner wants Bethel to return to the days when the town Appeals Board (which he chairs) had the authority to come to the rescue of residents who might be — in Faulkner's view — "treated badly," "manhandled," and/or "picked to death" — by the town Planning Board.

To accomplish this, Faulkner, along with Appeals Board members Lennie Shaw and Wende Gray, has endorsed a proposal to amend the town code to give the Appeals Board "de novo" review authority — that is, the ability to conduct its own review of the details and merits of an application and to allow the admission of new evidence. (De novo means "anew, afresh, or over again from the beginning.")

Currently the board is limited by town code to conducting reviews that are essentially "appellant" in scope. Such reviews are restricted to evaluating whether the Planning Board applied town regulations correctly in reaching a decision.

The decision can be overturned only if the Appeals Board determines it was arbitrary, capricious, or not

Local model railroaders share an enthusiasm but bring different perspectives to their play

Lionel's hefty rolling stock lures Dean Walker

By ALISON ALOISIO

"These are the trains kids had under Christmas trees. They were made to play with and run."

And that's just what Dean Walker of Bethel continues to do, 50 years after he first ran Lionel trains on a track in his family's home in New Hampshire.

Walker, a retired machinist/gunsmith, has been seriously collecting Lionel trains for about 20 years.

"It allows you to keep being a kid," he said.

He has 30 locomotives and 125 cars that he alternately displays and runs on a track in an upstairs room in his home.

The room is devoted entirely to trains, and most of the Lionels represent Northeastern rail lines.

Among the engines is a Pennsylvania Railroad locomotive "that runs as good today as it did 50 years ago," said Walker.

Another is a model of the Flying Yankee engine that used to pull trains from Boston to Montreal. There is also model of the Berkshire Railroad locomotive that pulled trains through the mountains of the same name in the 1940s and 1950s.

Boxcars carry the names of the Bangor and Aroostook, Canadian National, Boston and Maine, Vermont Central, New Haven, Baltimore and Ohio and many other rail lines, most of which no longer exist.

Walker concentrates on trains from the 1950s, the era in which both steam and diesel locomotives were operating.

For Blaine Mills small scale means room for big scenes

By ALISON ALOISIO

While Dean Walker concentrates his efforts on the rolling stock, Blaine Mills of Greenwood puts much of his into the scenery surrounding his N Scale train collection.

Mills has roughly 70 locomotives and 100 cars.

The individual N Scale (1:60) pieces are dwarfed by Walker's O Scale (1:48) Lionels. For example, a typical N Scale boxcar is three inches long, less than a third the length of its Lionel counterpart.

Mills' decision 40 years ago to collect N Scale was a practical one. With limited space available in his basement, he said, "I knew I couldn't [otherwise] have a railroad big enough for what I wanted."

Unlike Walker, Mills did not have model trains as a boy; instead he made model airplanes.

But he grew up around real trains in Locke Mills, watching Grand Trunk trains roll through town. Sometimes he and his mother rode the passenger trains to Bethel.

The N Scales are more realistic than the Lionels, and Mills memories of the real trains back up the accuracy.

"When I was a kid, it wasn't uncommon to see a lantern [carried by a brakeman] at night swinging on top of a car that was lurching, as they got ready to switch the train," he said.

Today, because of safety rules, the trainmen can't walk on the cars, and the train models reflect the change. While an N Scale model of yesterday included a ladder on the side and top of each car, today's models do not.

A Maine village Not surprisingly (for a local historian) Mills collects only Maine railroads. "It's a Grand

BROAD STREET'S TRASHY SIGNS

To the Editor:

I want to say thank you to Lynn Mason and her recent [Feb. 8] letter. Those neon signs are an eyesore in the historic district; perhaps we need the blind to see the obvious.

I am an active volunteer in the Bethel Historical Society and find those trashy signs both irritating and inappropriate.

Dare I ask what is next on Broad Street? Perhaps those familiar golden arches, a tattoo parlor or, best of all, a biker bar! Does not the town have regulations and ordinances regarding what is in the historic district?

Kudos to Lynn and Bronson.

NICE TO SEE CITIZEN ON LINE

To the Editor:

Just a note to say how nice it is to see The Citizen on line now. It sure brings a bit of "home" to me each week. I especially enjoyed seeing the Bryant Pond Library (where I spent many hours and my late mother worked for many years) on the front page of the site/paper.

My parents (Bob and Polly Croteau) purchased the home they lived in (on Main Street in Bryant Pond) from Mr. Whitman when I was only 7 yrs old and we lived there for nearly 20 years. Seeing him, his artwork and the library brings back many happy memories for me. I hope the site keeps expanding and growing so that those of us who live out of state can still keep up with the goings on in Bethel and the surrounding communities.

Thanks again.

LENTEN LUNCHEON SERIES

To the Editor:

Each Lenten Season the Bethel Area Clergy Association along with their churches sponsor the Lenten Luncheon Series. This year the Locke Mills United Church of Christ Church will host the luncheons on Thursday during Lent.

The luncheon will start sharply at noon and go to 12:50 p.m. The theme for this year's series is taken from Rick Warren's book, "The Purpose Driven Life." Rev. Warren states: "The Bible is clear that God considers 40 days a spiritually significant time period. Whenever God wanted to prepare someone for His purpose, He took 40 days."

The meditation for this Thursday, Feb. 22, deals with the introduction to Lent which is 40 days leading up to Easter. The Rev. Franklin Haines of the Locke Mills Church will share the meditation during the luncheon.

Mark your calendar for March 1, as the West Parish Congregational Church will provide the soup and bread for the luncheon at the Locke Mills Church. The Rev. Virginia Rickman will share the meditation on Moses as he was 40 days on Mount Sinai.

THE TOP OF THE HILL GANG—(and note: that's "top of," not "over") a senior adventure group up for skiing and snowshoeing at Sunday River Inn and Cross Country Center in Newry. The group's members come from all over New England and take part in outdoor-adventure sports such as skiing, hiking and SCUBA diving. Seniors make up an important segment of the Nordic skiing market. "What we're seeing is what the world is seeing — that seniors don't sit and crochet any more," said inn owner Steve Wight. (Photo: Scott Andrews) took County, has expanded its presence southward with acquisitions and developments at Black Mountain in Rumford and Pineland Farms in New Gloucester.

The Boston-based Appalachian Mountain Club has been acquiring traditional backwoods sporting camps in the Moosehead region and is developing a network of cross-country ski trails.

Other rivals are much smaller, but collectively they amount to significant competition, especially among day-trippers.

In the state's major population center, the nonprofit Portland Ski Club is teaming up with the city parks' department to groom trails at Riverside Golf Course. Hundreds ski Riverside each week.

In Cumberland, Coastal Nordic Ski Club and the municipal government are maintaining cross-country trails at Twin Brook, a town-owned park and forest.

Most disturbingly to the Bethel operators, tax-exempt Coastal Nordic purchased a top-of-the-line Snowcat groomer and installed limited snow-making equipment.

Using similar partnerships, new ski trails have been opened this year on town properties in Cape Elizabeth and Gray.

"As a consequence of these community ski areas, the touring centers in this region have reduced numbers," says Cooper. "I think that it is a misnomer to assume that a touring center is a profit center. If you look at our books, you'll find that the individual centers are struggling to make ends meet."

LD Model New Paradigm

A new paradigm of Nordic skiing is emerging, and Maine may be leading the way, says Wight, who has recently been leading a vigorous exchange of opinions via an e-mail forum.

Wight believes that the traditional fee-based Nordic center — the primary locus of activity since cross-country skiing first became popular in America — is declining because of the multiplicity of fee-free and nominal-cost community trails, especially in Maine.

The long-established Nordic model revolves around professionally groomed trails, equipment rentals, instruction, food service and collateral amenities.

These latter often include trailside lodging, retail sales, demo equipment, children's activities and adult enrichment programs plus a variety of local, regional and national competitions.

America's first Nordic center started in 1969 in Vermont, at Trapp Family Lodge. The Trapp model was widely emulated during the 1970s.

Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center in Newry was first in Maine. Wight opened his operation in 1972, the same year as the Jackson Ski Touring, the largest and busiest in the East.

Today there are about 350 fee-based Nordic centers scattered across the North American snowbelt, according to Chris Frado, executive director of the Cross Country Ski Areas Association.

Wight co-founded the New Hampshire-based organization, which has long opposed efforts by federal and state governments to create rival ski centers on public lands.

The National Sporting Goods Association estimates that annual cross-country participation amounts to about 18 million skier-outings, a number that has been growing slowly for a number of years.

Carter's X-C, the Bethel Inn Nordic Center and Sunday River Cross Country operate on the traditional fee-based business model.

Although all three have trailside accommodations and other amenities, they still depend on day-trippers from greater Portland for a major fraction of their sales.

That point is emphasized by Bethel Inn marketing director Brad Jerome, who notes that his company offers an attractive value-added option that is specifically targeted at day-trippers: a $29 special pass that includes trail ticket, lunch in the Millbrook Tavern and access to the health club and pool.

The continued viability of the fee-based model in Maine is threatened by the diminishing number of Nordic enthusiasts who drive an hour and a half to a ski center and buy the tickets needed to underwrite the expense of maintaining and grooming trails.

Some of the costs are large: The list price for top-of-the-line Snowcat groomers such as those used at Bethel Inn Nordic and Sunday River Cross Country is about $150,000.

Wight cites an industry study in the 1990s that estimated that only 6 percent of all cross-country skiing — corresponding to "skier-outings" — took place at traditional fee-based touring centers. Even that small percentage is falling, Wight believes, at least in Maine.

Alluding to generally increasing visitor numbers reported by her members, Frado believes that the Maine operators' concerns are limited to this state.

"From what I see nationally, it is a Maine phenomenon," she says.

Selling trail tickets has never been a big money-maker. Most people in the Nordic industry are enthusiasts themselves and entered the business because of their love for the sport. Carter, for example, started skiing in this area as a young child and raced on the Gould Academy ski team beginning in 1962.

But if the cross-country operators can't pay their bills, their centers will have to close.

"Those few of us in cross-country skiing are here because of philosophy and heart and passion for the sport," explains Wight. "But there's not enough money in the business to support the business model that most of us have been using."

ported by substantial evidence.

The decision cannot be overturned simply because members of the Appeals Board happen to disagree with any of the judgment calls that went into arriving at it.

That restriction does not sit well with Faulkner or with Shaw, who argued at a meeting last month that "sometimes the purpose of the [Appeals] Board is to look at things and cut people a little slack."

Ordinance nullification
Until Bethel's 2004 annual Town Meeting, the Appeals Board operated without such a restriction.

It could, and did, conduct its own reviews, and the results were on occasion based more on the personal opinion of the Appeals Board members than on town ordinances — at least in the eyes of other town officials.

Case in point: In 2003 the Appeals Board overturned a Planning Board ruling that proposed changes in an internally lighted sign at Bethel's Best restaurant were sufficient to terminate the sign's grandfathered status.

If the sign was changed, the planners ruled, the internal illumination (not allowed in new signs) had to go.

But the Appeals Board thought otherwise and allowed the illumination to remain.

The decision led to intense scrutiny and criticism of the manner in which the Appeals Board had been operating.

'Personal druthers'

Some town officials accused the Appeals Board members of essentially nullifying any town regulation they happened to disagree with. (Faulkner, for example, said at the time that he "despised" the Sign Ordinance.)

Dutch Dresser, then chairman of the Board of Selectmen, said of the Appeals Board sign decision: "I think if you review the minutes closely, you'd discover that the decisions were really made on the basis of personal druthers. ... I think we ought to be careful about not doing that. The Planning Board is not allowed to do it; [the selectmen] are not allowed to be doing it, and I don't think that as judges [the Appeals Board] ought to be doing it."

The following year an amendment to the town code limiting the Appeals Board to appellant review was passed narrowly (48-45) at Town Meeting.

Shaw was not pleased with that turn of events, which he described recently as follows: "We voted against the decision of the Planning Board, which pissed off the chairman of the Planning Board and the chairman of the selectmen, who wanted everything lined up in nice neat boxes, and they orchestrated a very nice appearance at the Town Meeting to basically reduce the Appeals Board to a rubber stamp for Planning Board decisions."

He began exploring the options for having the amendment overturned.

As a result, a proposal to do so was initially included in a packet of proposed ordinance revisions that the selectmen will submit to the Ordinance Review Committee for possible consideration at this year's annual Town Meeting.

But the de novo proposal did not make the first cut — the selectmen voted unanimously last week against recommending it to the Ordinance Review Committee.

"It's something I actively oppose," said Selectman Don Bennett. "I have no desire to go backward."

It could still, however, be on the Town Meeting warrant, if enough signatures are collected to force the issue.

'Who's aggrieved?'
Appeals Board member Kirk Siegel, a lawyer, appeared puzzled that the whole matter had been resurrected.

At last month's board meeting, he asked Faulkner to name anyone who has been hurt by the new arrangement, which has now been in place for nearly three years.

"Can you give me one example of someone who has suffered under this? Who's aggrieved? The voters passed this, and you want to take back what the voters passed, yet you can't give one example," Siegel said. "Who besides the board members here has asked for this change?"

Faulkner responded by referring to a case he said he recalled from his first years on the board, in which the Planning Board denied a disabled man permission to build a shed for his lawnmower.

"He was reduced to tears," Faulkner said.

Faulkner did not recall the man's name.

"Bethel Fire Department does not solicit funds over the telephone," Jodrey said. "Please do not donate any funds to anyone over the telephone."

Town meetings disappearing

AUGUSTA—Next month marks the start of Maine's town meeting season, but for a growing number of communities it just won't be the same. Some towns in central and coastal Maine have switched to a secret-ballot or referendum system that enables townspeople to go to the polls to weigh in on matters ranging from zoning issues to the budget. Those favoring the change say it's a lot less time consuming than sitting for hours as arguments are batted back and forth. But traditionalists say it doesn't give people the chance to debate the issues and try to persuade others to vote their way. "I don't think, as far as pure democracy in New England, it's the greatest way to go," Windsor selectman Dick Hagan said of the trend. "The problem in not having a meeting is you don't have a chance to discuss things. You vote cold turkey." Windsor is among the towns that have abandoned the traditional town meeting. Others include Monmouth, Whitefield, Jefferson, Waldoboro, Boothbay and Wiscasset. Still, there's no indication that the town meeting is an endangered species. Most of Maine's 450 or so towns and plantations still hold an annual meeting, which combines the business of local government with a chance for people to get together and socialize after the long winter. Proponents of referendum votes say town meeting no longer attracts voters, said Mike Starn, communications director for the Maine Municipal Association. People are too busy to attend, Starn said, and some believe a small turnout for town meeting allows a "special interest group" to control the outcome. In Norridgewock, only 100 to 200 out of a population of 3,300 are likely to attend, but Town Manager and former selectman John Doucette said no one has introduced the idea of a switch to a referendum. He says that's fine with him. "We were born with a town meeting, this country," Doucette said. "I like the town meeting because you get the questions asked. You can explain why the school budget is going up." Monmouth, however, ditched its town meeting two years ago after a successful petition drive to establish a referendum process. Selectman Pete Thibodeau said participation jumped from 100 to 200 at town meeting to 600 to 700 referendum voters. "There are a lot of people who wish we had a town meeting," he said. "They got to see people, talk to people. I hear people saying, 'we wish we could have town meeting back.'" Jefferson Town Clerk Lynne Bond said some older residents miss the pie sale and neighborliness at town meeting, but a quick vote at the town office or by absentee ballot is probably a better fit for the busy lives of younger families who commute long distances to work and then drive their kids to school games.

Trunk Railroad mainly. Some Maine Central," he said. Some of his engines and cars were bought as is, and some of the cars he built from kits.

Mills' collection, like Walker's, is largely from the 1950s, when steam and diesel engines overlapped.

His basement display is very specific in theme: a New England village in the autumn of 1956.

He's been working on it for seven years.

It's a meticulous process. The sand along the tracks is real. He dyed sawdust to mimic a carpet of pine needles. The dozens of trees were made at the rate of two or three in an evening. And a river was created from epoxy.

Buildings and people can be purchased from N Scale supply companies, Mills said.

His collection includes Sears

Roebuckhouses, a church with a wedding scene, and signs bearing the familiar names "J.J. Newberry," "A&P" and "Moxie."

Automobiles from the 1930s through the 1950s line the streets. They include a 1936 Buick and a 1949 Hudson.

In Mills' basement village, characters who go about their lives in the tiny town include hobos warming themselves by a fire, a dog relieving himself and people fishing from a dam.

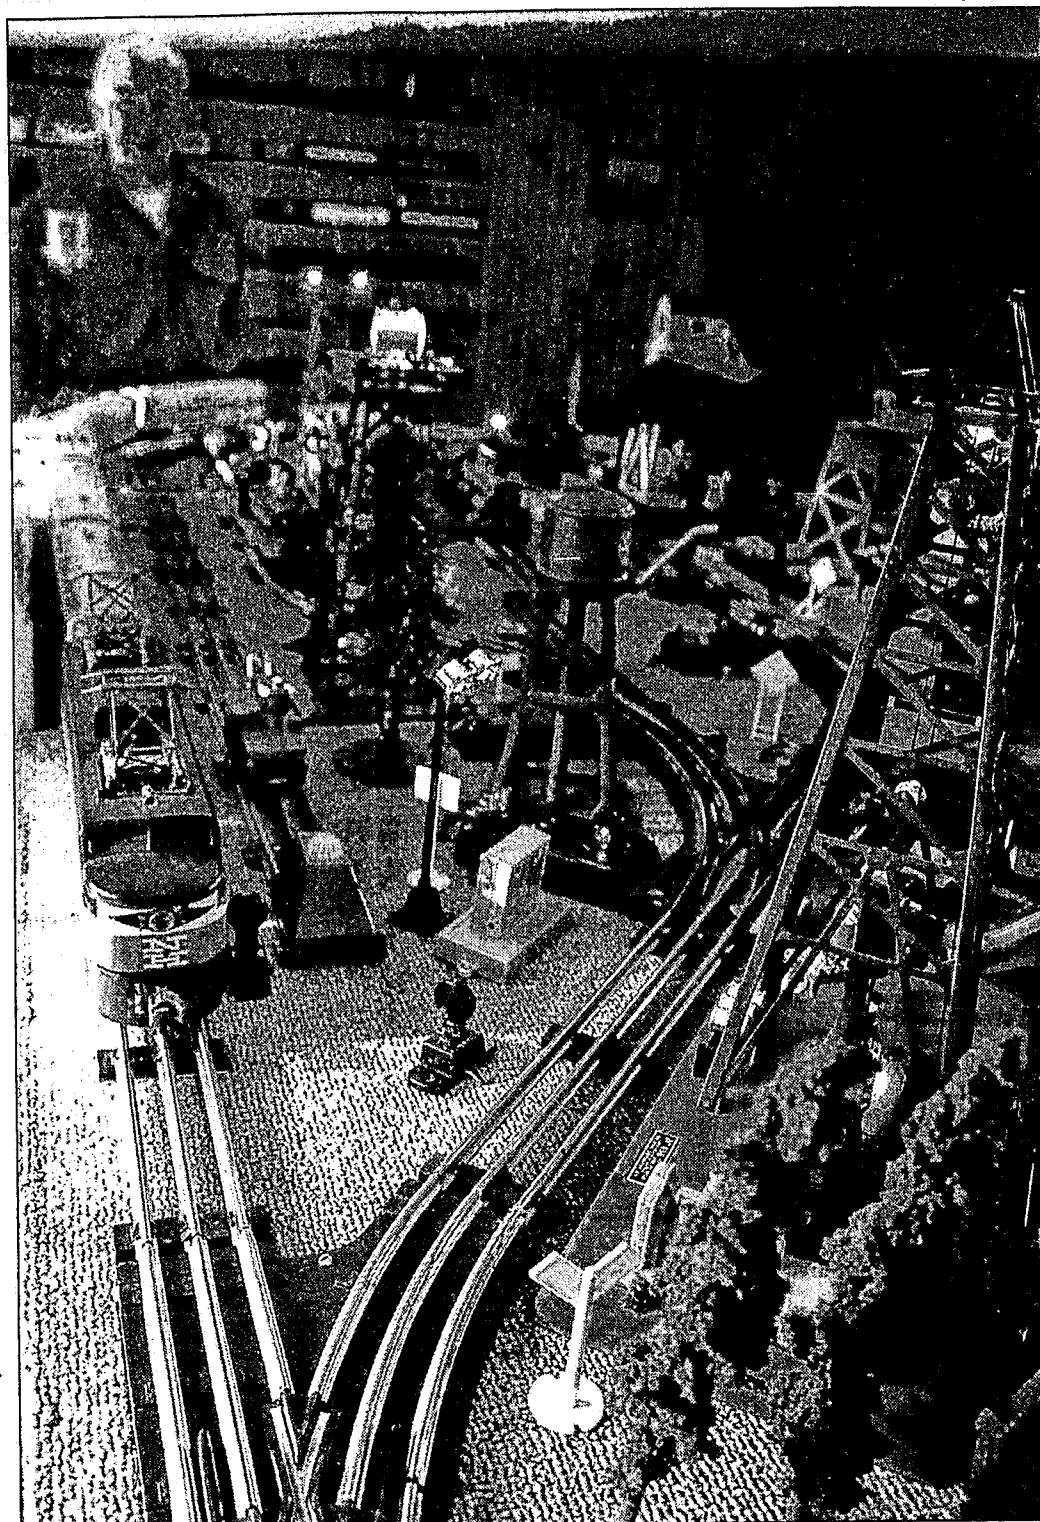

The village even includes a red-light district. Mills said it takes a lot of research to set up a train display accurately. "You really have to do your homework," he said.

Collectors who have displays at home are often unaware of other collectors living nearby.

"It's a closet hobby," he said.

DEAN WALKER'S LIONEL COLLECTION includes more than 30 locomotives and 125 cars. (Photo: A. Aloisio)

Lionel trains are made on a scale of 1:48. The trains, like Lionel's signature three-rail track, are not intended to be exact replicas of the real thing, said Walker, because they are toys.

Some of the cars are whimsical, such as one modeled as a traveling aquarium.

Through the glass windows on the side of the car, an observer can see illuminated "fish" on a rotating mechanism that gives the illusion that the fish are swimming.

Walker runs his trains on a track layout that combines a village and industrial theme.

A railroad bridge through the village bears a sign "West Bethel," while the industrial section features a sawmill. The mill includes a log and coal loader and an oil derrick.

An estimated 500 feet of electrical wire runs under the display table, to operate the train system and lighted scenery.

While Walker has included plenty of scenic background in his layout, his focus is on the trains themselves. He acquires them primarily at train shows and over the Internet.

Some of the rolling stock he has acquired was in need of TLC. "Some of the cars were just pieces of rusty junk," he said, so he had to replace metal from the wheels up.

He estimates about 10 hours of work has gone into each restoration.

His most valuable piece is a Pennsylvania GG1 engine from the 1930/40s, worth about $800.

The model is more realistic than most Lionels. "They pretty much duplicated it," Walker said.

Most of his cars and engines range in value from $50 to about $200.

Complete Lionel train sets from the past can go for thousands of dollars, he said.

Walker no longer acquires Lionels at the rate he did when he first began seriously collecting. "I'm more fussy now," he said.

He enjoys showing his collection to anyone who is interested. That often includes groups of youngsters.

"I'm more than willing to show it," he said. "That's half the fun of having it."

From the Bethel Police Log:

Foodliner fracas

Monday, Feb. 19

At 2:45 p.m. Officer Jack Taylor and Police Chief Alan Carr responded to the Bethel Foodliner for the report of an assault in progress. On arrival the subjects had left in a 1997 Honda Accord registered to Joseph G. Campbell of Massachusetts. The two subjects were said to have made obscene gestures at the manager and spit in the face of a concerned citizen attempting to help her.

Sunday, Feb. 18

At 7 a.m. Officer Donald McCormick responded to a BOLO for a vehicle, Maine registration 9565 ID, reported to be all over the road. Negative contact.

At 7:50 a.m. Officer Donald McCormick arrested Susan D. Wooden, 43, for illegal attachment of registration plates and operating with a suspended registration.

Saturday, Feb. 17

At approximately 6:15 a.m. Officer Donald McCormick telephoned a Church Street resident who had earlier been reported to be throwing snow at snow removal equipment operating on Church Street and being very verbally abusive to the snow removal crew. The resident refused to listen to reason and said he would address the issue with town selectmen.

At 1:35 p.m. Officer Jack Taylor arrested Daniel T. Brown for OUI.

At 4:50 p.m. Officer Donald McCormick responded to the Sunday River Road for a vehicle that had run off the roadway. The crash was unreportable, but the driver, Matthew J. Doiron, 23, was arrested for OUI.

At 5 p.m. Lt. S.R. White arrested Craig J. Crowley, 18, of Arundel for possession of a suspended license.

At 7:55 p.m. Officer Travis Fillmore arrested Paul S. Christensen, 41, of Oakdale, Conn., for OUI.

At midnight Officer Donald McCormick on routine patrol found an open door and the shed behind a Route 2 business. Nothing appeared to be out of place.

Wednesday, Feb. 14

At 5:40 a.m. Officer T.J. Reese arrested James W. Blair III, 57 for OUI.

At 9:40 p.m. Officer T.J. Reese arrested Brent P. Soloman, 28, for OUI.

At 12:10 p.m. Chief Alan Carr responded to a report that a tractor trailer had possibly struck a utility pole by a business on the Sunday River Road. The vehicle was found to be delivering products to the business.

Tuesday, Feb. 12

Time not noted. Officer Jack Taylor summonsed Rick A. Savage, 42, of Bethel for criminal threatening.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log for the 10 days prior to the newspaper's publication. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies.

ASC restructured its real estate debt. The company now has significant land holdings near the resort, according to ASC.

"During the design and planning phase of the Killington Village, it became apparent that the developable real estate and resort operations should be controlled by a single owner," Fair said.

ASC said the sales of resorts in Vermont and New Hampshire for $157 million, and planned sale of Steamboat resort to Canadian resort operator Intrawest Corp. for $265 million will allow the company to repay its $190 million in bank debt and $115 million in junior debt.

"At the end of the day, it's a good price for the company," Fair said.

POWDR, based in Park City, Utah, owns Mount Bachelor in Oregon, Alpine Meadows and Boreal Mountain Resort in California and Las Vegas Ski & Snowboard Resort.

The sale will not affect employees or season pass holders at Killington and Pico this season, Fair said.

"The length of service and benefits will continue for the period after the close," he said.

"Business as usual" here Jim Costello, vice president for brand management at Sunday River, said he did not foresee the sales having any immediate impact on the Newry resort.

"Right now our focus is to keep our nose to the grindstone, make sure to finish out the season strong, and continue to build momentum and take advantage of all this recent natural snowfall," Costello said.

"We're right in the middle of our planning process for '08 and we haven't changed course, or anything of that nature," he said. "We're going along business as usual here. Between The Canyons, Sunday River and Sugarloaf we're going to keep moving ahead."

Ginger Kelly had knee surgery on Monday at Stephens Memorial Hospital and is now at Market Square for rehab. Irving and Hilda Brown spent December and January in England with Hilda's family in North Fleet, Kent.

Rita and Don Frost spent the week at their Chapman Street home.

President's Day and school vacation make great fun for kids and families with the snow and all.

Thank you from Bob Keniston: It's about time I acknowledge all the cards, phone calls, and visits from the many, many friends and relatives I have received since my bout with a blood virus in January. Bless you all!

Kent and Mary Rosberg of Elliot spent Sunday thru Tuesday with Brad and Judy Barkar.

West Bethel

by Lorrie Hoeh

Last Wednesday's snowstorm left 21 inches of white stuff at the Hoehstead. Needless to say, this writer is ecstatic and enjoying every inch of it. I hope you are all keeping warm and not overdoing it with shoveling, etc.

I tried snowshoeing a trail on the forest road Friday morning, but it was too soft and deep. Since then, however, snowmobile tracks have appeared, making for a nice ski track. Mike enjoyed a couple of good ski outings while I was down in Portland with spinners over the weekend. He saw lots of tracks, including moose, deer, bobcat, fisher, coyote, and out by the schoolhouse, even some weasel tracks.

Last Thursday the Senior Players of Western Mountains Senior College met for the second time this semester. We are working on a number of short plays, most of them humorous, in preparation for performances on April 14 and 15. Mark your calendars now.

Department of Know Your Neighbors: The other day I talked with Jeff Parsons about the Snowboarding House out on Route 2. He and wife Patti operate it as a residence for foreign workers in winter and a hostel in summer. The building comprises three small apartments upstairs, one of which is occupied year-round, and dormitory facilities on the ground floor, along with shared kitchen facilities. The building has capacity for up to 26 people. Jeff and Patti are working on building up the summer hostel business.

Jeff says that there are currently 21 young people living there, coming from Peru, Argentina, and Chile. Other countries represented in past years have included Brazil, South Africa, and Australia. These young people are, for the most part, college students, very bright, English-speaking, adaptable, and easy to train. They are working at Sunday River for the three or four months they are here, as part of a program developed by the North American Ski Industry, which needs temporary workers such as these for a short period of time. The industry takes care of organizing their work permits, visas, etc. This is a win-win situation, providing competent staff for Sunday River, and giving a boost to international relations. At times Sunday River has employed 100 or more during a ski season.

The Parsonses try to offer a rounded experience to their tenants from abroad, inviting them on trips to South Paris, Lewiston, or Portland, for example, and they love to go. Jeff suggests that local residents might enjoy taking some of these folks on their own excursions here and there. Just give Jeff a call at 836-2002, and he'll help you arrange it. The Spanish department at Gould Academy has invited the visitors to come to classes at Gould — surely a great opportunity both for them and the Gould students. In addition, they have participated in some soccer activities at Gould Field House.

I asked Jeff for an update on the lives of the four Parsons children. Emily, the eldest, was graduated from Goucher College in 2005 with a major in psychology. She is employed by My Gym in Baltimore, which provides a specialized exercise program for children. Thomas, next in line, received his degree in business and economics from University of Maine at Farmington in 2006. He is now pursuing a master's degree in business administration at the University of Colorado in Denver. Thomas, who was twice a national champion snowboarder and third in the world in snowboarding, is no longer competing, but he is still boarding for fun — and what better place than the Rockies!

Charles, who finished at Gould Academy in 2006, is now a freshman at the University of Virginia in Richmond. He is taking lots of science courses, and he plays intramural soccer every chance he gets. The youngest, Jonathan, is 16 and a student at Gould. Jonathan is a downhill ski racer, in addition to being a very good student.

Add to all the above the Parsons family also operates a small U-Haul franchise. It is stationed at Bethel Outdoor Adventures in summer, and here in West Bethel in the winter.

This Monday morning is frigid and windy, but the sun is shining as I write, with forecasts of a slight warming trend to come. Keep the home fires burning (only in the woodstove or fireplace, please!), and let me know your news. 836-3011; dhoeh@megalink.net.

Gilead

by Lin Chapman

Well, the snow finally arrived. We got somewhere in the vicinity of 20 inches. Sue Coriveau and her helpers, Michael and Mallory, were really busy for a couple of days plowing snow.

My brother, Steve McLain, has been busy cleaning up after the snowstorm. His son, Brad McLain, has been around to give him some much-needed help.

We spoke to our son, Chris, this past weekend and he said that they have very little snow in the St. Cloud, Minn., area. It has been really cold, but not much snow. Happy Birthday wishes go out to Chris who celebrated a birthday on Feb. 21.

This past weekend, our granddaughter, Sidney Chapman, spent some time with us. She is quite the busy little girl, but loves to come and visit with her Grammy and Grampa.

Planning Board

The next regular meeting of the Gilead Planning Board will be held in the Fire Station on March 1 beginning at 7 p.m. Agendas will be posted at the Transfer Station, Town Hall, and Town Office. Call Jack Pucak at 836-2729 if you have any questions.

Town Office

The Selectmen had to cancel their meeting scheduled for Feb. 14 due to the snowstorm. The next regular meeting is scheduled for Feb. 28.

Gilead Historical Society

The first meeting of 2007 of the GHS will be held on March 24 at the Town Hall at 1 p.m. There will be several items that need to be looked at by the members. The Friends and Family Day to be held on June 23 will be the biggest topic of discussion. Committees will need to be set up once the group has decided on what we will be offering. Information from last year will be looked at, and it can be determined what worked and what did not. So please plan on attending this meeting, but between now and then, start thinking of what can be done to make this day a success.

Got any news? Call 836-2987 or e-mail chapmal@hotmail.com.

Hanover

by Clem Worcester

They said we were having an open winter. Then we had five or six inches of snow and a few days later five or six more inches. And then we got the Big Storm. The Valentines Day storm brought blizzard-like conditions and 15 inches — 18 inches — 20 inches — and some say 30 inches of snow. In all, a good job was done by road crews in keeping roads passable during the several days that we were attacked by the storm, winds and below-normal temperatures. High snowbanks have reduced visibility so use caution at intersections and when entering a highway.

This is school vacation week for students and teachers so we hope everyone is making the best of it and really enjoying our fine winter weather.

Hanover resident Patricia Monroe passed away on Feb. 8, at Owl's Head. Pat and her husband, Gerald, have had a home on South Shore Road for several years. We extend sympathy to her family.

It is also noted that Karen Berry of Bryant Pond passed away on Feb. 3. As a nurse working for Androscoquin Home Health she was a familiar caregiver who brought a lot of comfort to elderly and ill

The Hanover Select Board will meet on Tuesday, Feb. 27, at 5 p.m. at the Hanover Town Office. Items expected to be on the agenda are matters dealing with a proposed subdivision and a request to post non-public 911 roads as private roads. Mason

by Richard Grover

We got the same blizzard as everyone else last week. Beautiful stuff! We also lost our electric power for about two hours on Wednesday morning.

I awoke at about 4 a.m. to complete darkness and with the wind howling outside. My first thoughts were to get our generator going and get big sister Verna's generator going as soon as possible, so she wouldn't freeze.

First, I had to plow a path to get my pickup out to the road, because we had too much snow for even my 4-wheel drive. Finally got out and got to Verna's house, still dark. Couldn't get her generator to start! At least, I could see lights at Dan and Nancy's house, so I knew they were up. Luckily, Dan had a spare backup generator in his basement. He got that running and helped me take it to Verna's to hook it up to her system. Once we got her power and her furnace running, I gave Dan a ride home; along the way, we saw lights on at David Hanscom's house. Sure enough, CMP had the juice on. Back to Verna's to convert back to CMP power. By now, it was a little after 6 a.m.!

Verna's house sits on the windiest place this side of the Flat Road. She was forever having to have roof shingles replaced until she had a steel roof put on. In winter, her driveway always fills with snow because of the "snow fence" (bushes on the upwind side). Last Wednesday, the snow was really moving across her driveway (all that didn't pile up in it). I checked with Verna to see if she needed to get out for anything; then I recommended we wait until the wind died down before trying to clear the driveway. Next morning, there were drifts up to five or six feet high covering much of the drive. I used my Kubota for one and one-half hours to clear a drive, but half is on the lawn because I could see no use in trying to move the biggest drifts. She was some happy to get out with her car after being marooned for three days.

Our thoughts and prayers are with Verna right now because her grandson, Greg Thayer, who lives in southern California, had surgery and was in intensive care several days last week. I understand that he is home now but will have to go back for more surgery once he has recovered from this one and doctors have determined the source and extent of his illness.

I have one of those inexplicable situations with our camper and the blizzard. The snow piled up about 18" deep atop the camper, nice and soft and fluffy. The wind has howled and torn the camper tarp to shreds on the upwind side, but the snow sat there virtually unmoved until I got my roof rake out and manually hauled the snow off. How can that be?

Sunday afternoon, I took friends Norm Buttrick and Kathy skiing on our x-country ski trail, not realizing they are strictly flatland skiers. After a couple tumbles into the snow, both of them had trouble getting their ski bindings to lock onto the toes of their ski boots, and they were nearly new LL Bean skis and boots! After many frustrating unsuccessful attempts to get Norm's boots to lock in place, I got out my trusty Leatherman knife. I discovered ice in the bindings, and finally was able to free the mechanism with the screwdriver feature on the Leatherman. A one-hour trip turned into about two and one and one-half.

Wow! What a lot of snow! After the storm my snow stick measured 24 inches of accumulation in Mason. Western Maine Youth Hockey won Sunday's game against Gorham, Maine, 4-0! How is our vacation going? Mine is going great. If anything interesting happens over your vacation, please e-mail me your news: serenanjeff@gwi.net.

Newry

by Sylvia Harrington

The night of the big snow and subsequent wind blowing so hard it added another two inches to the depth — also covered the flue on the entry roof. The next morning out I went to clear it and pull away enough snow so both upstairs windows would open.

Leslie Aron told me that Crystal Lake sent Albert to the Newry Post Office to take her back to Locke Mills for an overnight. She probably wouldn't have been able to make it home through the Grafton Notch area. I was told that Crystal had prepared a wonderful supper for them and that it smelled so good as she entered the warm house; and it was delicious.

Leslie also told me that she had a bit of trouble getting to work on Friday in the Grafton area.

I was told that snow depths were 30 inches in Upton and three feet in Colebrook.

On Thursday, Earl Tyler, Jr., and his wife were out plowing snow at a few homes on the Branch Road. When he stopped to offer assistance as I was trying to clear out around the mailbox, I said a very stupid thing: "I can't pay you." He said he didn't need anything. He and his dad used to plow the bottom of the drive many years ago. So he made it clean so Barry Swazey could deliver mail that day. Thank you Earl.

Sandee and Leon have been grooming off and on since the storm. They did get a distress call to help out a fellow from Andover who needed some help as he had partially gone over a section of a bridge on the trail. Off they went in the groomer to assist. Sandee told me the conditions were a whiteout coming back and they could not see the tracks they had made going up to where the stranded machine was.

Leon and Owen were out grooming trials on Friday in the Grafton Notch area; not an easy section to groom.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte
I don't dare mention the weather out loud. Boy, did the Celestial Weatherman dump a load on the North Country. You really shouldn't have wallowed in comfort during the early warm spell. Be careful about what you wish for because now you have it until spring. Upton folks that I have talked to are taking it in stride. Thirty inches is a lot of snow!

Jim Kenney, who was a patient at Stephens Memorial had to stay extra days in the hospital till the snow could be removed from around his home. We are happy to say that he is doing well with Evelyn caring for his every need.

Neighbors helped neighbors during the overwhelming storm.

The road men are to be commended for a great job. Simone Lavallee said that there is no way that she can leave her house yet. Sue Angevine said temperatures ranged around 10 below zero and lower. Now that's winter!

The weather is crazy this year. Lucille and Earl Larresse spent some time defrosting their frozen pipes in Tucson Ariz. Upton really isn't the only cold place. The temperature went down to the mid thirties here in New Symrna Beach. Winter coats came out of mothballs. Some folks were wearing earmuffs.

Gene and Sandy Wixom entertained their grandchildren with some super snowmobiling during the long weekend.

Simone reports that Margaret Mitchell and Tex Fog will be doing well in St. Petersburg. They don't miss the snow one bit.

We witnessed another rocket launch at Cape Canaveral on Saturday evening. That makes three this year. (Awesome!)

The Daytona 500 was like the super bowl around here. It was everyone's topic of conversation, and the traffic was a disaster

Last week we went to Merrit Island Wildlife Refuge. It was wilder than Maine. The lakes and ponds were black with all manner of waterfowl. The coots took the prize. There must have been close to a million birds. I listed the ones we saw but they are far to many to report.

I did see some favorites. There were many flocks of swallows darting up and down the road. The swamps had numerous herons, little green, great blues and little blues plus tri-colored herons. Egrets seen were cattle, great egrets and snowy egrets. There were several ibises and quite a few roseate spoonbills. We did not see any flamingos. There were people from all over America and Canada viewing the birds. The wood stork with its wings outspread became the "Bird of the Week." He was magnificent.

Albany

by Sheila Dyke
Greetings and hello from Albany Township. The past snowfall has made it great for the kids to be outside, building forts and snowmen (after the cold made it a bit easier to work with) and, of course, the skiing has been great, too.

As many of us who live in the Township are aware, the Albany Improvement Association is asking for donations to fix up the old Town Hall building.

If you have any questions, or wish to make a donation, please give Sally Sawyer a call at 824-2052.

We hope that the kids are all enjoying their February vacation week. Best wishes for a happy and safe week. God Bless and Keep.

West Paris

by Joyce Lamb
On Feb. 25 at the West Paris Universalist Church, Sally Nealand will be the guest speaker. Church starts at 9 a.m. followed by a coffee hour. On Monday, Feb. 26, the Goodwill Fellowship will meet at 12 noon at the church for a potluck luncheon. PoKeNo will follow the business meeting after lunch.

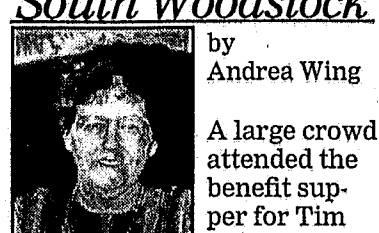

The craft group has a quilt ready to tie. We will be working on that when a few more are available to help.

The supper for Tim Poland was a great success. We all wish him well with his battle with cancer.

Carmen Hadley is again at Stephens Memorial Hospital. Our thoughts are with her. We hope she will be feeling better soon.

I am still in Augusta with my daughter, Peg Lamb. I expect to be home in a few weeks. Sure wish for warmer weather all over the state. The dog, Maisy, doesn't mind the cold.

South Woodstock

by Andrea Wing
A large crowd attended the benefit supper for Tim Poland. The supper was held at the Finnish Legion Hall in West Paris. Friends, family and others provided food for the supper.

We finally got enough snow to get us talking about it for a while. We received about a foot and a half here in South Woodstock. Richard has spent many hours plowing and sanding.

Sincere sympathy to the family of Clara Wilson who died recently. She leaves a large family and many friends. Her husband, Shirley, died several years ago.

The birds and squirrels have been keeping close to the feeders.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society, reports that at the meeting members reminisced about changes over the years. They say they are looking forward to having Arlene Mackillop speak on her art next meeting. The T-shirts they have for sale will be $10.

Those making the honor roll from this area are: high school, honors, Joshua Campbell, Kara Thurlow, Bailey Davis; elementary school, Jonah Thurlow, Liam Gallagher. Good work!

Much thanks to nationally known sculptor Gil Whitman for the gift of the sculptor presented to Whitman Memorial Library, named Tiger. It is now a permanent resident of the library ground. The Whitman Memorial Library is named for Gil Whitman's great-uncle Alanson Mellen Whitman, one of the earliest settlers of Bryant Pond.

Correction: Last week I put Elmer Waterhouse as deceased. He is very much alive. I'm so sorry for the mistake.

Quote of the Week: "I've learned that if someone asks, 'How are you doing?' it's not necessary to give him/her a full report."

Bryant Pond

by Alice Hoyt
News from Mrs. Nieberle: Hi everyone, just thought I would drop a line, mostly because we had a good size moose in the yard last night about 5 p.m. Tom Gaudreau and Matt Cushman spotted the moose.

There were three children skating on the pond. They were brave to be out in this cold weather.

Dot Cushman told me the ski and soup group has started at Sunday River Inn. It is on Wednesday and Ruth Feeney is the cross-country ski leader.

Saw Ellie Andrews at her gym today. She broke her arm recently falling on ice. Ellie is always smiling.

Noticed a cement bench has been placed at the playground across from the beach. It surely must be granite. I believe it had the word "poppa" carved into it. Maybe Mr. Gott is responsible for its placement.

Went to a Tupperware party at Nancy Cushman's house. Haven't been to a Tupperware party in quite some time.

Was at Breau's Too today, always pleasant people working. The owner of the original Breau's in Bethel (Rick) was there visiting his brother, Bob Breau.

In the winter, not much is new. Karen Yarasitis went to dinner with Nancy Willard last week to visit with some Bethel friends. They tried Gideon's and enjoyed it a lot. Karen has been real busy skiing at Sunday River.

Patty Carot came for a visit. She is teaching at the Rowe School.

That was a terrible fire at Locke Mills and sad to see a house burn all the way. Thank goodness the Hustons got out safely.

March 26 is Woodstock's Town Meeting. The purchase of a snowplow is one of the issues to be discussed.

Well, back to the Tupperware party — I forgot to mention Kim Thurlow was there, a Stacy from Andrews Hill Road, a Kathy from Cushman Hill Road — wish I had gotten their last names. I did get Abby's. It is Landry; she is four years old and came with her mom, Amy. Stacy is a Pampered Chef demonstrator, Amy a nurse from Stephens Memorial ER, Kathy a nurse at Rumford Hospital, Kim works for Oxford Speedway.

A truck wash is coming this spring to the former Nadeau Garage and the old Trolley House in Norway is going to be opening with new owners under the name of Jacoby's.

Kristen (Cushman) Inman came to visit Dot Cushman for the weekend with husband, Hal, and two daughters, Delia and Stella.

Whitman Memorial Library will have Pat Verrill of West Paris discussing organic and sustainable gardening on April 12.

Was at Teresa's Hair Studio. Thank goodness it was toasty warm there. Love Kathy's new "do," a little longer than usual. Kathy works there and was telling me about her horses. She loves horses.

Services at the Baptist Church are Sunday School at 9:15 a.m., morning worship at 10:30 a.m., youth group at 4 p.m., choir at 5 p.m., evening service at 6 p.m. Wednesday evening at 6:30 p.m. is prayer meeting. There will be a baptism on Sunday, Feb. 25. Mission Conference will be Feb. 28 to March 4.

Judith Grover Tent 17 Daughters of Union Veterans will meet on Monday, Feb. 26, at the home of Alice Hoyt for installation of officers.

The Woodstock-Greenwood Senior Citizens will meet on Thursday, March 1, at Ledgerview Memorial Home. Meeting starts at 11:30 a.m.; lunch will be served by Ledgerview Auxiliary, followed by speaker, Anita Wiles from Seniors Plus.

I sure hope the snow lovers got their fill of snow with Wednesday's storm.

Historical Society
Curator Larry Billings has given the Historical Society a large print, unframed, of a painting by John Constable, and an antique garden sculpture of the god, Pan. Both add to the collection of art and sculpture.

At the Historical Society meeting, members welcomed a new member, Adelaide O'Neil. They all recalled changes they had seen over the years from crank phones to dial, iceboxes to modern refrigerators, woodstoves to microwaves.

Some lived on farms and remembered horses before cars. Two talked of changes in Bethel and Bryant Pond. One remembered paying only $35 for her land. The society decided to charge $10 for the t-shirts during the business meeting. Arlene MacKillop will speak at the March meeting.

The Historical Society meetings are held on the second Saturday of each month; meetings are held at the town conference room during the winter months. Bryant Pond is the ultimate cultural destination. See the Woodstock Historical Society Museum and the New England Cultural Center.

Andover

by Melinda Averill

Hello Andover readers. I hope everyone enjoyed the nice "northeaster" we got last Wednesday! (That's what all the weathermen were calling it.) I think we got officially 17 inches. Nice cross-country skiing time.

Last Tuesday, Peg and I went to Norway for a doctor's visit. Afterward we stopped by and visited with our nephew, Troy, who has opened up a daycare and preschool in South Paris. Very impressive.

There will be an informational meeting for a Book Club at the Andover Library. The meeting will be on March 5 at 6:30 p.m. at the library. Bring some reading ideas and suggestions to get started.

The Andover School is selling raffle tickets for an 18-by-24 picture of White Cap. They are trying to raise money to help the Mahoosuc Land Trust with the purchase of White Cap. As many of you know, fifth-grade teacher Mr. Emery has taken his class for a hike up the mountain every fall for about twenty years now. The photo was donated by Andover's own photographer, Dirk MacKnight. The winner will be drawn on Family Basketball Night at the Andover School, March 1 at 5:30 p.m. Tickets are available at the school and at the local stores.

Congratulations to the following Andover students who make the honor roll for the second quarter at Telstar: sixth grade, Autumn Berry, Gabrielle Conrad, Ashley Hall, Jennalee Putnum and Cody Smith; seventh grade high honors, Adam Mahar; eighth grade, Elek Pew; ninth grade, Amy Jane Mahar; 10th grade, Abigail Jones, Whitney Mills, Dorothy Palmer; 11th grade, Julia Stambolis; 12th grade, Jennifer Learned, Kayla Morin.

Don't forget the meeting tonight at the Town Hall regarding the Transfer Station. Have a nice weekend.

From

Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center

A special film on the history of ski clubs and winter carnivals focusing on those in Andover (Pineland) and Rumford (Chisholm) was featured at the 33rd annual Bethel Historical Society Heritage Day held on Feb. 17 at the society's Regional History Center. This film produced by society life member John G. Howe of Gettysburg, Pa., who was a ski jumper growing up in Bethel and a member of the Gould Academy Ski Team, has preserved many of the memories of this era when ski clubs were in vogue in western Maine.

At the Dr. Moses Mason House, special tours of the museum were conducted by Steve Seames and Kathy Kunkel while warm Indian pudding with generous helpings of real whipped cream were served from the hearth of the winter kitchen. At the O'Neil Robinson House, there were exhibits, traditional craft demonstrations by Jane Peterson of Rumford (weaving) and Grace McKivergan also of Rumford (spinning and knitting). An exhibit of mineral specimens from antique collections on loan from Jim and Anne Mann and Larry T.P. Stifler and Mary McFadden was on display for the first time this weekend. Visitors came from many parts of New England.

A free oral history workshop will be held on Feb. 27 at the Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center's Dr. Moses Mason House Meeting Room from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Jo Radnor, Ph.D. will be the featured speaker and lead the workshop, which is made possible in part from a grant from the Maine Humanities Council. Everyone is welcome to come and learn how to gather and process oral history.

Genealogical Course

A five-session course called "Cousin to Cousin" dealing with genealogical methods and sources will be led by Stephen T. Seames at the Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Wednesdays, March 14 through April 11. To register, please call the society office at 824-2908 or (800) 824-2910. Course fees will be $15 for members and $20 for non-members.

With nearly 1,400 members, the Bethel Historical Society, founded in 1966, is western Maine's largest and most comprehensive full-time historical agency, dedicated to collecting, preserving, and interpreting the regional past for present and future generations. For forty years, the society's activities have included lectures, exhibits, special events, heritage festivals, workshops, conferences, school and educational programs, and publications. In 1974, the society acquired the former Broad Street residence of Dr. Moses Mason, which now contains a period house museum, exhibit hall and research library. In 1999, the society opened the O'Neil Robinson House (next door at 10 Broad Street) to the public for an expanded exhibit program, museum shop space, and administrative offices. Through the years, the society's achievements have been recognized by a number of state and national organizations.

Further information about the society and its activities may be obtained by calling 824-2908 or (800) 824-2910, or by sending an e-mail to info@bethelhistorical.org. Additional information can also be obtained by checking the society's website at www.bethelhistorical.org. The society's mailing address is P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217-0012.

Rick has been a familiar face in the Bethel area for many years, always arriving with energy, laughter, and of course plenty of great music. Norway Memorial Library is the next book for discussion at the Norway Memorial Library on Thursday, March 1, at 7 p.m. This is the second in a series of five books being read pertaining to China in connection with the 2007 One Book One Community; Oxford Hills Reads program.

"River Town; Two Years on the Yangtze" by Peter Hessler

This series is open to the public and books are available to purchase or borrow at the Norway Memorial Library.

Peter Hessler is currently the Beijing correspondent for "The New Yorker" magazine, but he wrote "River Town" in 2001 after returning from the two years he spent in China as a Peace Corps volunteer from 1996-1998. He went to teach English in a teachers' college in the town of Fuling at the confluence of the Yangtze and Wu rivers in the heart of the Sichuan province. It was then a remote part of China that had seen no American visitors for over fifty years, and it had no roadways to it; to get there he went by a river boat.

"River Town" is about a certain small part of China at a certain brief period in time, and Hessler captures the richness of both the place and the moment. Fuling is one of the cities on the Yangtze that is being partially flooded by the new Three Gorges Dam, and for two years the river was as much a part of Hessler's life in China as the city itself.

The discussion about "River Town" will be facilitated by library staff, and the public is invited to participate. For more information about joining this book discussion call the Norway Library at 743-5309.

From

Rumford Community Concert Assoc.

On Wednesday, Feb. 28, the Rumford Community Concert Association will present the second concert of the 2006-07 series at Muskie Auditorium, Mountain Valley High School, 7:30 p.m.

The Journeys — Bronn,

Katherine, and the harp — bring you music that is nothing short of glorious. The harp is often called "the instrument of angels" and Bronn's amazing versatility and skill on this ancient instrument, along with Katherine's radiant voice, will transport you to the gates of heaven itself. They are well known throughout Washington state and the Pacific Northwest, and have also performed extensively in California, Oregon, Montana, Idaho and, most recently, western Canada. Bronn has even played the national anthem at Seattle Seahawks and Sonics sporting events.

Bronn and Katherine do not typically use a written program. They enjoy choosing each piece through interaction with the audience. At times, Katherine uses a piano to accompany Bronn, and Bronn may also choose to use his Celtic harp to add variety and spice to the music. And, although no two programs are exactly alike, humor is always a part of the program, which incorporates selections from pop, classical, folk and sacred genres. The Journeys are a spectacular duo that always incorporates the unexpected into their concerts and makes a seriously classical instrument, the harp, accessible to everyone.

Rumford Community Concert Association volunteers will be available at this concert to assist anyone who would like to join. Memberships are $35 for adults, seniors $30, $10 for students, and family memberships are $75.

From

Black Diamond Family Entertainment

Sunday River Ski Resort will present Fusion, the comedy juggling trio on Tuesday, March 6 and on Saturday, March 10, comedy with character with Randy Judkins and Barney Martin as part the Black Diamond Family Entertainment Series.

Fusion is usually associated with physics — nuclear fusion is a process in which two nuclei join, forming a larger nucleus and releasing energy. In this case, there are three "nuclei," Jason Tardy, Michael Miclon and Matthew Tardy, and when they join together the result is explosive, side-splitting comedy. Fusion is an all-star cast that has performed around the world. Their high-energy antics will delight the eye, intrigue the mind, and attack the funny bone. They mix together all elements of theater from physical comedy, acrobatics, contortion, juggling and everything in between to create a performance that leaves audiences breathless.

Then on March 10 hold on to your sides again as Randy Judkins and Barney Martin, charter members and two-thirds of the Maine Hysterical Society, present a comedy variety show. The show features novelty songs and parodies, hilarious Maine characters, "wicked good" juggling, and some of the most hysterical sketches you'll ever see. Your face will hurt and your sides will ache — even the day after. It's what they call a Maine "Humor Hangover."

Both shows begin at 7 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Grand Summit Resort Hotel at Sunday River Ski Resort. Tickets for these family events are $4 for children (6-12) and adults, $6 in advance or $6 and $8 at the door. Tickets may be purchased on-mountain at the South Ridge Welcome Center, the Snow Cap Inn and the Grand Summit Hotel front desk or at Books N Things in Bethel. One Book One Community

"Yeh 'Yeh's House" is the 2007 One Book One Community selection for the Oxford Hills Reads. It is a memoir by Chinese-American Evelina Chao who recounts her travel to China in 1987 in the company of her mother.

Chao experiences for herself the country she has learned about largely through letters from her grandfather, Yeh Yeh. While visiting her parents' families in China, Chao is taken back to her Chinese roots. She learns about the Communist Revolution and the Cultural Revolution through her families' histories.

Join with others in the Oxford Hills to talk about the various themes in "Yeh Yeh's House." Book discussion groups are planned throughout the month of March and all are open to the public. Books are available for $5 at participating libraries.

The following is a list of the scheduled book discussions with locations, dates and times: Bolsters Mills Village Library — Tuesday, March 6 at 7 p.m.; Otisfield Town Office — Monday, March 12 at 7 p.m.; Paris Public Library — Tuesday, March 13 at 7 p.m.; Harrison Village Library — Thursday, March 15 at 7 p.m.; West Paris Public Library — Saturday, March 24 at 10 a.m.; Waterford Library — Wednesday, March 28 at 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m.; Norway Memorial Library — Thursday, March 29 at 7 p.m.

There will be a half-hour telephone interview with the author on Monday, March 12 at 6 p.m. at the Norway Memorial Library. This will be open to the public and those who have a question for Ms. Chao should submit them in advance of this date to a participating library.

For more information about this year's book selection and programs, please visit Oxford Hills Reads blog at www.oxfordhillsreads.blogspot.com.

From

Gould Academy

While the Prep Alpine Skiing and Snowboarding teams swept the podium during the MAISAD Championships, Gould's FIS Development men and women took first and second place in the NEPSACs.

Ten of Gould's top FIS Development skiers (five men and five women) traveled to Ascutney Mountain in Brownsville, Vt., on Friday, Feb. 16 to represent Gould Academy in the 2007 Class A New England Prep School Alpine Ski Championships.

The Gould men dominated the competition. In the slalom, the men took the title as seniors Gary Rumley and Willie Courtney finished first and second. Sophomore Jeff Lathrop finished 6th, while first year J2, Eddie Mele was 9th and Joel Leonardi 13th. In the Giant Slalom, it was again Gould who finished on top. Courtney took 3rd place, Rumley 5th, Lathrop 7th and Mele 11th. The men finished with 24 points, while Holderness took second place with 40 points and New Hampton School followed with 45 points.

The Gould women also put forth a strong day of competition with a young group of athletes. Sophomore, Caitlin Forbes finished in 4th place, while classmate Abby Gardner took 6th. Jackie Reis and sister, Hilary finished in 9th and 12th, while Carey Hadden took 18th. In the Giant Slalom, Gould finished in second thanks to a strong 3rd-place finish by Caitlin Forbes and a sixth place tally for Jackie Reis. Hilary Reis came in 10th, Abby Gardner 12th and Carey Hadden finished 21st. The team completed the day with 38 points, which was good enough for a second-place finish. The Holderness women finished first, and New Hampton third.

Coach Mike Syrovatka and assistant, Stephanie Vaughn, traveled with the team to Ascutney. Both were very impressed with the performance of these talented racers.

Gould's Prep skiing and snowboarding teams also found success in the MAISAD Championships.

Last Friday, the Gould Academy Prep Snowboard team competed in the slope-style team championships at Sunday River. The women finished in second place with Sarah Dennen's and Amelia Brodka's respective 1st and 5th place win. The Men's varsity team won thanks to a 2nd place finish by Brian Murphy, a 4th place finish by Tom Duggan, and a 5th place finish by Brandon Haller. The Men's JV team also won after Sam Dasch took 1st, Ayumu Oda took 2nd, and Nico Portuondo took 5th.

Several Gould riders also finished well in the MAISAD Prep Snowboard Series. The riders competed in slope-style events, big air, a quarter pipe competition and the half-pipe. Amelia Brodka won the women's division, while Tom Duggan finished 6th, Brian Murphy 8th, and Sawyer Barter 10th in the Men's varsity division. Tommy Voigt won the Men's JV series, while Sam Dasch finished a close 2nd, followed by Nico Portuondo in 4th, Laszlo Thorsenon-Nagel in 6th, Ayumu Oda in 8th, and Fabian Suessenguth in 9th.

Both the Varsity Men and Women Alpine teams also won the MAISAD Championships. Both teams won the Giant Slalom event! Top finishers for the girls were Brittany Riley in 1st, Hannah Cowan in 3rd, Hillary Fox in 8th, Lilly Goebel in 9th, and Hilary Hough in 11th. The Boys' top finishers included Derek Harnden in 2nd, Tyler Hodson in 4th, Max Littlefield in 6th, Georg Eschweiler in 10th, Derek Nagy in 13, and Alain Gardner in 15th.

In the slalom, the boys were first again and the girls took second, only 2 points behind Kents Hill. Top finishers for the girls were Brittany Riley in 1st, Hannah Cowan in 6th, Hillary Fox in 8th, Lilly Goebel in 10th, and Hilary Hough in 11th. The boys' top finishers were Max Littlefield in 2nd, Tyler Hodson in 3rd, Derek Nagy in 6th, Georg Eschweiler in 10th, and Alain Gardner in 11th.

"It was a great day for the team in some very challenging conditions with lots of deep runs and cold and windy conditions," said Coach Sue Gardner.

Congratulations to all participants and coaches on a job well done!

Boys' Varsity Basketball
MPA tournament quarter finals Feb. 17: Gould 54, Forest Hills 34. Gould opened the tournament with an impressive victory against a spirited Forest Hills team. Despite having to adjust to the tightly called game, Gould pulled out to a 29-26 halftime lead behind the hot shooting of Evan Bruens — 12 first half points on 6 for 6 shooting. Gould held F.H. to three third quarter points, while extending the lead to 40-23. During this stretch, substitutes Scot Baribeau and Jerry Kan played excellent defense and helped the Huskies take control of the game. All eleven players were dressed and played for Gould in the victory. The team was led by T.L. Tutor's 20 points, 5 assists and 3 steals. Evan Bruens added 16 points and 2 steals. Ian Siekman was a force around the glass contributing 13 rebounds, 6 blocks and 4 assists to the cause. Gould will play Valley on Wednesday.

SCHOOL NEWS FROM AROUND THE DISTRICT

Tracy Mason visited CPS classrooms this month to help educate students in proper dental care.

February is Dental Health Month! Mrs. Mason, Bethel Family Dentistry, was our guest speaker. All third graders at CPS participated in a dental health rotation learning about the importance of brushing, flossing, and eating healthy.

Third graders at CPS enjoyed their full day of skiing at Sunday River on Friday, February 9. The Sunday River Instructors were "WONDERFUL", and all of our young skiers thoroughly enjoyed their experience.

Kindergartners at CPS participated in a variety of math and language activities in celebration of the 100th day of school. Mrs. Sabin's class is pictured here wearing glasses made out of the numeral 100.

As February comes to a close, so does a CPS kindergarten science unit on dinosaurs. As one of several culminating activities, Addison Rafford and Selina Creelman display their dinosaur clay scenes.

Telstar's AP Chemistry Class uses spectrophotometers on loan from Bowdoin College to do a lab. The machines measure absorbance of different wavelengths of light by certain substances. This week chemistry classes have been looking at the absorbance of light by food colorings and dyes to figure out why certain colors are seen. Telstar owns one spectrophotometer, but thanks go to Bowdoin College for lending Telstar four more machines so that all chemistry students could have the chance to use them. Students in several classrooms at Crescent Park School each made 100 Valentines to send to troops in Afghanistan and Iraq as an activity for the 100th day of school. When the school became aware of what these students were doing, The Student Council challenged everyone in the school to make a valentine. A total of 400 Valentines were sent — 200 going to Spc. Joshua J. Hamel stationed with the 10th Mountain Division in Afghanistan, and 200 going to Matthew E. Hamel stationed with the 377th PFAR in Iraq. They will share the Valentines with the troops. Joshua and Matthew are the sons of Keith and Marilyn Hamel.

Rumford Community Concert Association Presents Second Concert of 2006-07 Series

On Wednesday, February 28, 2007, the Rumford Community Concert Association will present the second concert of the 2006-07 series at Muskie Auditorium, Mountain Valley High School, 7:30pm.

The Journeys - Bronn, Katherine, and the harp - bring you music that is nothing short of glorious. The harp is often called "the instrument of angels" and Bronn's amazing versatility and skill on this ancient instrument, along with Katherine's radiant voice will transport you to the gates of heaven itself! They are well known throughout Washington state, and the Pacific northwest, and have also performed extensively in California, Oregon, Montana, and Idaho, and most recently, western Canada. Bronn has even played the National Anthem at Seattle Seahawks and Sonics sporting events.

Bronn and Katherine do not typically use a written program. They enjoy choosing each piece through interaction with the audience. At times, Katherine uses a piano to accompany Bronn, and Bronn may also choose to use his Celtic harp to add variety and spice to the music. And, although no two programs are exactly alike, humor is always a part of the program, which incorporates selections from pop, classical, folk, and sacred genres. The Journeys are a spectacular duo that always incorporates the unexpected into their concerts and makes a seriously classical instrument - the harp - accessible to everyone.

Rumford Community Concert Association volunteers will be available at this concert to assist anyone who would like to join. Memberships are $35 for adults, Seniors $30, $10 for Students, and Family Memberships are $75.

Saturday, March 24

10 a.m. to 2 p.m. — Indoor Flea Market by Mundt-Allen Unit 81 American Legion Auxiliary at the Post Home on Vernon Street, Bethel. Any person wishing to purchase a table for $15 may do so by contacting Pat McCartney at 836-3575 or Jeri Greenwell at 824-2532.

It's always wise to call ahead

While we do our utmost to ensure the reliability of the information presented here, we recognize that when dealing with such a large volume of material, some inaccuracies will occasionally creep in. And in other cases, a sponsoring organization's plans may change between the time The Citizen is printed and the event is held. Accordingly, we strongly urge our readers to call ahead to verify the details of any event they plan to attend. Doing so will greatly reduce the chance of disappointment or needless inconvenience.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

WHEN IT'S A BUSINESS MOVE

If you are relocating to another city for a new job, get professional advice from a Realtor and a tax expert.

Your Realtor will work to market your current home, refer you to a top real estate professional in your new city and provide the names of good long-distance movers, so you can get competitive quotes from reliable firms.

Your tax advisor will tell you exactly what moving expenses you can deduct on your income tax filing. Publication 521 from the Internal Revenue Service (available on the Internet) can provide you with basic information regarding moving expense allowances. Your tax advisor will also clarify for you the capital gains implications associated with the sale of your property, which could have an impact on what you can afford to spend on your new home.

With the right information, and assisted by the right people, you will find that a business move can be orderly, simple and even enjoyable!

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling real estate, contact Cindy Hiebert at Mahoosuc Realty, 207-824-2771

In Loving Memory of David "Duka" Mills Feb. 17 1966-2004

We miss your childlike laughter, your gentleness, your smile. We'd love so much to see you, and just talk with you awhile.
No one can fill the empty void, when you've lost someone you love. You were an angel here on earth, and now you're one above.
Our hearts still feel the sorrow, without you here, we feel alone. Your precious face we'll see again, when the good Lord takes us home.
